ABSTRACT

A method and system for evaluating performance level models of electronic systems having both hardware and software components is provided. The system and method allow for the simplified implementation and testing of several different

5   architectural designs for compliance with the desired operational requirement of a designed electronic system.

10   12226617.1